

Goals of the human rights situation conference in light of the Arab spring
(The first year harvest)
Cairo, 11-14/12/2011

On the occasion of the beginning of the Arab spring with the martyrdom of the young university graduate Albuazizh in Sidi Bouzid, Tunisia, and in the occasion of the 63rd anniversary of the Universal Declaration on Human Rights, we have seen it appropriate to hold a conference to discuss the situation of human rights in the Arab world, hoping to assess the harvest of the first year of life of Arab spring, an opportunity to examine the reality of progress made in the field of human rights in various civil, political, economic, social, cultural and other areas. There is no doubt that human rights organizations in particular and civil society organizations in general have had a role to varying degrees of influence in this or that Arab country, which requires reading the scientific reality of the local and regional role and stand on the entirely positive points to spread them, and weaknesses to avoid them, and even the new mechanisms for the development and activation of this role. That is why we seek this conference where we examine and diagnose the concrete reality of the first year of the Arab spring on the one hand, and on the other hand we look together at the prospects of this spring from the point of view of human rights in the year and years to come. We also want to assume responsibility in the human rights and civilian community-based movements in the Arab world about the legitimate and inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, after nearly 63 years past for the international community deny them and using tens of veto against their fulfillment for reasons unknown.

Goals of the conference The conference aims at the following points:

1. Identify the causes, characteristics, and courses of Arab revolutions from the perspective of human rights.
2. Identify the concepts of rights in the Arab revolutions.
3. Monitor the prospects of democratization and building civil state under the Arab spring.
4. Exploring the prospects of reconciliation in the community under the transitional justice.
5. Exploring the future of the Arab regional system of human rights after Arab revolutions spring.
6. Exploring the impact of the Arab revolutions on women's rights.
7. Explore the expectations of the Arab revolution.
8. Explore the prospects for the relationship between civil society and finance.
9. Explore the prospects for the development of the human rights in the Arab world.
